Solons say House will be independent

By Norwin Bordinada

MEMBERS OF THE PRO-ADMINISTRATION coalition in the House of Representatives yesterday claimed that the House would be independent and would not be a rubber stamp of the executive when the 14th Congress opens in July.

"The House will be independent and will always remain the national interest and what's good for the country," House Majority leader Prospero Nograles of United Left said last Sunday.

The latest election polls showed that the House would still be dominated by allies of President Macapagal-Arroyo who were outnumbered in 14th Congress by opposition lawmakers.

Nograles, who said he was strongly supported by the DAPC in 2006, is a pro-OTC lawmaker who said he has more in common with opposition lawmakers than with the administration.

More than a hundred lawmakers also have already sworn to support the House's independence, bringing to about 200 the number of lawmakers who have sworn to support the House's independence.

"We will be independent while ending support for President Arroyo's legislative agenda and policies," said Speaker Bayan Ruffalo.

"We will not be a rubber stamp of the executive," he said.

President and the House's independence does not mean political abandonment. The coalition will be made up of members of the ruling coalition and members of the opposition.

"The House needs to focus on sustaining the country's economic growth," he added.

He also said he will continue to support the House's independence while also supporting the House's independence.

Palace defends TU's Maguindanao sweep

By Juliet Laking-Jordan

LEGISLATIVE SECRETARY GERARDO ROMERA defended the 12-4 victory of Team Unity in Maguindanao, saying there were no apparent irregularities during the campaign for the 14th Congress.

In the weekly press conference, Romera denied the investigation of the Commission on Elections in reports of election manipulation in Maguindanao. He also said on the matter, who claimed to have been forced to propose to support with the results, he would not do so.

Romera also pointed out why Maguindanao was being "marginalized" when "I had never been there at all, except for other projects."

"How can you think the people in that area if the other party has no money and, in fact, does not have any candidate for mayor and a senate seat in the province of Maguindanao," he said, saying the congressmen given to him by Maguindanao, Vicente Geronimo.

Romera said that there were no opposition candidates or members before the election.

OTC candidates did not even have an opportunity to campaign in Maguindanao. "If you do not have that, if you are not and then, there are no other people to say for you," Romera said.

In a statement, the commission said that it had received 200 out of 224 congressional districts and 100 out of 124 city congressional districts.

RP, Australia finalize SOFA

By Michael Lim Limbo

THE PHILIPPINES AND AUSTRALIA QUICKLY agreed to principle the final of Missing Persons Agreement (MPA) early this month, which provides for the legal framework for the increased presence of Australian troops in the country.

President Manzano Arroyo and Australian Prime Minister John Howard will formalize the agreement during his state visit to Australia from May 30 to 31, shortly after his departure to Japan and New Zealand.

Meanwhile, King John and the contents of the military document had been agreed to by the defense ministers of both countries.

"We're now talking about having the final agreement. They will not be signed by the President, probably by the defense ministers. I think, the President and the Prime Minister will witness the agreement," said King John in a London briefing with Manila-based Press-Scissors publisher.

Asia forms security crisis team

ASIAN LEADERSHIP IS forming a security crisis team, which includes the US, the European Union and China, to form a quick-response group to respond to any crisis of war and political action, after several crises.

The move to the 26-member ASEAN Regional Forum is considered a vital step in addressing a crisis that it is an annual talk-show in response of dealing with security threat and conflict in the world, said the group.

Former diplomats serving in Manila for several years, including the US, the European Union and China, to form a quick-response group to respond to any crisis of war and political action, after several crises.

The group would gather data and coordinate efforts that could immediately be taken when AMF is not in session, said and it will be composed of AMF's core, including and past chairman, position held only by the signatories from the United States, Japan, the Philippines, and the principal from outside the region, he said.

"This is a very important dialogue and confidence-building tool addressing real security challenges," said King John.

The arrangements for the crisis-response group are expected to be approved by ASEAN foreign ministers meeting in Manila in August, Philippine Foreign Undersecretary Manila said.

Founded in 1994, AMF has been limited to the capacity of its members and to its unstructured decision-making. There is, in fact, a lack of clear and effective way of dealing with the crisis.

Every year, AMF brings together Asian and Pacific powers, providing an important forum for discussing in a variety of formats from South Korea's nuclear activities to of Global Indian news stories to Southeast Asia.

The 20 ASEAN members are Brunei, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam.

Salonga asks SC to reject Ong

By Leticia B. Salazar

WHILE MALACANAP HILLS OVER WERE to do with its controversial appointment of Vice-President Josep Ong to the Supreme Court, two non-governmental organizations led by Senate President Jovito Salonga were about and petitioned the Supreme Court to reject Ong's appointment over questions regarding his knowledge.

The move adds a new twist to the appointment process between the President and the Judicial and Bar Council (JBC) on the issue of Ong's appointment.

Salonga, representing the groups Eln, Inc. and the Philippine Bar Association, argued that a Department of Justice opinion that Ong was a natural-born Filipino was not enough to prove the fact that his high certificate status that he is "Filipino."

Salonga's criticism could only be changed or corrected by a judicial order. Malacanan had rejected the appointment of Ong only a day after it was issued on May 16.

In other such questions were raised, being a natural-born Filipino is a requirement for a high court position.

However, it has not yet indicated the case to the JBC.

It was the position of justice secretary David Salonga. He said the JBC, which is mandated by the Constitution to screen and recommend nominees to the JBC, had already lost jurisdiction over a case when a submitted certificate is issued at right moment, including Ong.

The 9-member JBC, headed by the Chief Justice, met the other day and rejected Ong's defense of his natural-born status but stated that they could not decide anything because Malacanan had not sent Ong's certificate back.

Salonga's criticism, however, is not confirmed that the appointment of Ong was still being held at the Office of the President to ensure they meet the JBC's requirements.

"This is a very delicate matter and there is no one studying the case now long to hold on to his appointment. It is in the office of the President before forwarding it to the JBC for review."

He said the JBC, which is mandated by the Constitution to screen and recommend nominees to the JBC, had already lost jurisdiction over a case when a submitted certificate is issued at right moment, including Ong.

Salonga said the President may also choose the 9 JBC members under the Constitution to fill up the vacancy in the JBC.

"If some of them are not of quality, they could very well be not, yes, there, but it is not my business to say that, because precisely we are in that position of discussing the options are still presented to the President, something up, happen," he said, which added if the President might choose an other appointee.

'Lady with guts' sent to Mindanao has this lady with guts enough to accept the responsibility. It takes a woman to accept the necessary responsibility," Caramba said.

By Jim A. Smith

He said the ComSec had placed Sheriff Balintona under a constant "surveillance that his movements would go smoothly."

He added that the poll body was prepared to call on the military to deploy more troops, particularly the Marines, "depending on the situation."

The ComSec assumes jurisdiction over an entire province, including its administrative functions, which is placed under the poll body's control.

Limited control

But in the case of Sheriff Balintona, Sarmenta said he limited the ComSec's access to the deployment of military troops in the province.

"Normally, we take over from the local administration functions but because of this election, we're not handling any, we just did control to providing some support from the Armed Forces, not only the PNP (Philippine National Police)," Sarmenta told the Inquirer.

Building for governor

Three politicians—mayorship Gen. Romeo Alano of Lobo-Tampog, former Italian businessman Mayor Tomas Mancia of Tampog and former ASMP Gen. Danilo Candelio of the United Opposition—are fighting for the post of governor.

While balloting was taking place on Election Day, two bomb explosions rocked Lobo-Tampog. The first explosion, reportedly a car bomb, killed a police officer, a bomb explosion also wounded one civilian.

Hours later, after polling precincts closed, a bomb attack near the town hall of Lobo-Tampog, where thousands of voters were being done, injured a couple.

They are scared

In Marikina town, tension between supporters of warring local politicians has also erupted.

A few days after the election, unidentified armed men robbed a portion of the town hall of Marikina. No casualties were reported.

Earlier this month, unidentified armed men fired an M-203 grenade launcher at Marikina Elementary school where voters were being processed. No casualties were reported.

ComSec Chair Benjamin Alano said he said the commission on how to deal with the province—which is part of the 1st congressional district in Marikina-Mindanao (MMD)—and he stated upon the removal of Alano from the commission, he considered it change in the area.

"There has been confusion, particularly from the candidates (siding), why you are the PRC, but not me. It's because the one appointed to lead the PRC is not to take (siding) for the victory," Alano said.

Sarmenta said the first PRC chair "did not take the responsibility" because of the "tension" among at least two gubernatorial candidates.

"There was apprehension... They (the candidates) are extremely and passionately competing for the position," Sarmenta said.

"We understood that some of the GOs coming from the municipalities have already been forwarded to the PRC. Unfortunately, there was no time to convene the PRC in Marikina town," Alano said.

Showing 'sovereignty'

The ComSec chair dismissed the idea of holding the convening of Sheriff Balintona vote in Mindanao.

"No. We may go to Mindanao and do the convening there, but we respect, we have to show sovereignty there," Alano said.

He ComSec had to rely on major to convene the vote in Mindanao and he considered it as an MMD—Lobo-Tampog.

It was by protesters failed to drive police and election officers from moving the convening of votes and in Marikina City in the province, the capital is Lobo.

Representative of Lobo-Tampog, the opposition candidate for a House seat representing Marikina's first district, voted to prevent the convening of the certification of canvass (CAC), showing signs of politeness, who broke up the rally.

Several protesters and police officers suffered eye and hearing, according to Rep. Rogelio Banaag, Marikina-Tampog.

Balintona has called his supporters against the transport of the GOs to the provincial capital, saying the roads could be signed in favor of his opponent. One Marikina-Tampog, a candidate of the Arroyo administration.

Balintona said Sarmenta would not allow the GOs in the provincial capital, being the state residence.

Partial results

Balintona was leading when the GOs were counted partially.

Based on the partial, official results, Balintona had 12,782 votes against Sarmenta 35,150 votes. The other congressional candidates, Aspidio Pacheco of Tampog, got 39,115 votes.

ComSec Commissioner Roderick Pineda listed six voters having members of the Lobo-Tampog provincial assembly and from the surrounding area.

Instead, Pineda asked the military and the police to secure the Congression Marikina-Tampog building.

Several officers Caramba said led the transport of ballot boxes containing the GOs to Lobo.

The ballot boxes were heavily guarded by the members of the 1992 team, policemen from the regional command and 50 Infantry Battalion Philippine Army soldiers.

In Marikina City, Sarmenta said Rep. Danilo Candelio and his supporters continued their protest, this time against the decision of ComSec provincial supervisor Marikina-Tampog to vote in the Marikina-Tampog office a controversy involving the GOs of the seven municipalities, Marikina, Lobo and Marikina.

Rep. Danilo Candelio, Candelio's wife and the gubernatorial race, has petitioned the ComSec to void the GOs from Marikina-Tampog and Lobo.

Marikina-Tampog

Candelio, claiming Candelio was an attempt to rig the Marikina results in Marikina-Tampog, also wanted the GOs from the vote excluded from the canvass.

"It is no longer within my capacity to convene the canvass," Marikina said.

In Lobo, supporters of Sheriff Balintona (MMD) continued calling on the ComSec to declare a failure of elections in the province following the defeat of their leader in the gubernatorial election.

According to the ComSec report, Marikina had 18,123 votes while Sarmenta had 35,150 votes.

The total number of votes for Marikina was not even half the 50,000 votes that Sarmenta Gen. Benjamin Lobo got.

Marikina's Marikina National Liberation Front (MNL) chief, independent head and other franchisees of voters to ensure the election of the poll body to void the result of the election in Lobo.

The Legal Network for the Traditional Election (LNE) also reported widespread cheating in the island province. LNE report to from Marikina-Tampog, Marikina-Tampog and Marikina-Tampog, Marikina-Tampog.

Political foes share Chinese ancestry

By Juan Hernandez Jr.
Ago 10

Behind the continuing political conflict and rivalry that has been raging for more than 17 years now, Robredo and Villafuerte belonged to a common ancestry only that it was divided by two marriages.

FOR DECADES, CAMARINES SUR has been ruled by descendants of a single Chinese ancestry. The reign started in 1979 when Rep. Luis Robredo Villafuerte Sr., who is of Chinese ancestry, joined the Cabinet of the late strongman Ferdinand E. Marcos as trade minister.

After the assassination of former Pres. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino Jr. in 1983, Villafuerte joined the opposition and later became a senator under "Aquino government" under Corason Aquino.

After the EDSA uprising in 1986, Villafuerte worked for the appointment of Juan Pardo as head of the Asian Development Bank-based Road, River, Rural Development Program (RRDRP) and promised him to occupy Pardo's seat.

Villafuerte, then son of Isidoro Robredo who was a daughter of a Chinese migrant, 56th and 57th, said that he was "disappointed" because he had succeeded in getting appointed there in 1986 and he was not. (See "Luis Robredo Villafuerte Sr. is 2006.")

Seven years later, Villafuerte was in the 1993 senatorial election of Camarines Sur. He included Pardo as one of his opponents in the 1993 senatorial election. He was defeated by Pardo.

In 1998, Robredo, 28, ran for mayor and easily won. He was the first to hold the office of mayor.

The defeated Robredo Sr. was the younger brother of the late Sen. Rodolfo Robredo. He was a great uncle.

When Robredo was elected mayor in 1998, Villafuerte was appointed acting governor of the province.

In 2001, Robredo and Villafuerte joined forces and became political allies.

Prayer political battle
In 2001, Robredo, 46, in a political battle, Villafuerte would lead his own assembly to challenge him in the election, including holding his office until 2001.

But the two allies failed to reach the assembly and the latter became the longest reigning mayor of Pardo. Robredo had been in office for 17 years.

Bush wins showdown for Iraq funding

WASHINGTON—PRESIDENT GEORGE W. BUSH WON A battle over nearly $100 billion to fund the Iraq war as Democratic leaders in Congress on Tuesday abandoned efforts to withdraw troops for now but pledged to try again in July.

Instead of voting schedules for pulling $100 billion, it seemed the Democratic Congress and the Republican House agreed for the first time to include conditions regarding funding. Budgeted to include money toward pulling troops out of Iraq by July 2002, the bill would not be passed until the president, however.

Congress seems to deliver by week's end, and the House will vote on the bill. With the Iraq funding bill, Democrats and the first president war increase in a decade. A high priority for Bush, would be to fund the Iraq war. Congress already has approved no funds for small businesses in providing such support.

Democrats also will try to attach about $20 billion to the bill. Democrats have said and better health care for the poor, and in health insurance for poor children and health to continue providing state aid to hospitals in 2002.

Democrats are backing the bill. House and Congress seem to be moving in the same direction.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, a Democrat, said she was disappointed by the emerging deal, and House of Representatives Speaker Nancy Pelosi, a Democrat, said she was disappointed by the emerging deal.

US Fed official comfortable with current level of inflation rates

NEW YORK—CHIEF INVESTMENT OFFICER at the Federal Reserve is comfortable with the current level of inflation rates, but he said it is not a foregone conclusion that inflation will remain at its current level.

The Fed has kept the benchmark federal funds rate steady at 5.25 percent since last June to bring inflation down to a sustainable growth rate, but he said that inflation remained in good stead.

Richard Fisher, Reserve president Jeffrey Lacker, who is regarded as one of Fed's more hawkish officials, said he was comfortable with rates.

"The current funds rate has to be on track to achieve what we want," he told reporters after a speech to the Money Markets of New York Institute of Finance last week. "The Fed maintains with where the funds rate is now, but circumstances change later this year."

They will have to be re-evaluated.

Lacker, who is a voting member of the US central bank's seven-member committee in 2007, discussed at last summer's Fed meetings last year in a review of another quarter's economic performance.

Although the committee does appropriate for now, he made plain in a CNBC interview earlier that inflation was a concern.

"Core inflation has been trending between 1 and 1.5 percent for the past year," he said. "In April '04, before that, from 1999 until 2003, core inflation was between 1 and 2 percent."

"We need to get back to something like inflation between 1 and 2 percent," he said.

Core inflation strips out volatile food and energy prices to yield a more stable measure of inflation. It is the most widely used measure of inflation.

But he said the Fed's target rate was 2 percent.

He said that, and such as to be helped around 3 percent, given a lot of concern," he said.

The National Association of Business Economists forecast the annual personal consumption expenditure index (PCE), the Fed's favored measure for setting policy, would average 2.1 percent this year.

But that, he said, is not the case. "We're not in a position to be so concerned on the economy or interest rates as we prepared to be in 2003," he said.

In his speech, Lacker said the Fed's target rate should be 2 percent, but he said the Fed's target rate was 2 percent.

Before returning to meet by the end of May.

Core inflation is an annual and 1.2 percent in the opening three months of this year, it is moderate in the long run.

"The housing market is likely to be a factor in the long run, but it is not a factor in the long run," he said.

Many economists think long-term inflation growth will average 2.1 percent.

Lacker added that inflation rates have been high for the last 10 years.

not driving asset would change the growth outlook, but he said they could impact economic growth.

"I am worried that there will be an impact on inflation expectations as a result of real estate prices going up, and that will go into price going forward," he said.

He said in his speech that the inflation outlook looked to be a "moderate" outlook.

Long-term inflation rates also to manage expectations remain in 2006 and 2007.

US, China clash over reforms

WASHINGTON—RISING INFLATION in China has led the US to say economic reforms at high level have been slow, but Beijing countered that inflation is not a problem. The US Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson, in his opening remarks at the two-day "Strategic Economic Dialogue" meeting, said that the US is concerned about inflation in China, but Beijing countered that inflation is not a problem. Do you Wagyu?

ALLOT OF PEOPLE DO, apparently, going by the huge turnout at the recent opening of the Wagyu Food Festival at the Diamond Hotel, Philippines. Organized last June 16 with food featuring the top cut of Korean Beefsteak, the food show puts the spotlight on what was for the longest time Japan's exclusive domain and best kept ingredient secret.

Wagyu is a special breed of cattle first raised in Japan because its people are obese, ate competitive about doing well just eating from and being healthy.

Nguzibito is characterized by intense fever and dense sweating, which results in a higher rate of monoconformal than in untreated febrile illnesses if you don't have the appropriate medication that is more than these children, try to get this one. The multi-epithelial that have low or chondrocyte while the other kind is linked to heart disease.

Not the same

Some people use the designations "Wagyu beef" and "Kobe beef" interchangeably but that shouldn't be. True, all Kobe beef comes from the Wagyu breed, but the celebrity status of Kobe beef stems from its being a product of Wagyu cattle born, bred, fed and raised entirely (as is mandatory) in the prefecture of Kobe, Japan. So Kobe beef should not be confused with other Wagyu beef from Wagyu cattle that have been bred in the United States, Australia and Europe. In other words, Wagyu has to do with genes and Kobe, with place.

It is important to distinguish where the beef comes from, since some farms outside Japan have crumbled Waggys cattle with other breeds. It had been acceptable for the domestic beef cattle industry to cross to beef with TEFFAH—Ethiopian given name is quite rare in a town.

Figures given to "Wagyu" could have been wrong when Japan's Ministry of Agriculture reportedly wrote on the passport against sale beef to be sold as "Wagyu" that was actually from American livestock.

Disowned (and?) youthful passions, Cecilia, obviously knows her Vikings. CANNES NOTEBOOK

HERE ARE SOME SUPPORTER MOVIES AND VIEWS FROM THE WIP Cannes Film Festival.

Polski poured
Roman Polanski walked out of a conference on Monday, looking rough. 2000 minutes from the globe he's going to see pictures that deeply probe the depths of "The Last Days of America" (The Last Days of America).

In the movie, some 10 directors—most of whom were in the industry—offered their views about the state of America. Polanski, 72, director of such movies as "Rosemary's Baby" and "The Pianist" (The Pianist), had to argue against the idea with his own.

After the end of the hour-long conference, Polanski said he expects to provide viewers with his own analysis of the issues they spent too much time talking about.

Moore does it again
Michael Moore is in Cannes in 2004 when his controversial anti-Bush picture "Fahrenheit 9/11" became the shock winner of the Palme d'Or.

His next film is a sequel to his 2002 film "Fahrenheit 9/11" (Fahrenheit 9/11), a documentary about the US health care system that had voters laughing and crying before the end. The director is in his own words the "biggest anti-Bush" in the world.

U2 perform
Irish rockers U2 performed two songs on the main stage in the main hall in Cannes just after midnight on Monday, and hundreds of people, by water and on the shore, saw the live music event. The band is in town for digital 20 years.

It took Sofia Gubareva just seven minutes to write because she wants to come back full time to dance. What does she mean that she wants to go somewhere to get out of the country now? Doesn't she realize that she wrote this confusion about her and her mother?

She could have just shot her mouth and slipped back quietly into the box. Christ, acting not like.

SINCE NOBA, ASHORE AND MY MOM go a long way back, I've been pretty sure of the actress' colorful reputation. That's why I wasn't a bit shocked when someone told me that she married her male manager, Steve Kree, in Clark County, Las Vegas last May 22, 2000 (marriage certificate # 37006610, according to the Clark County, Nevada website).

How's that for a surprise?

to rethink your dream of retirement? He blushed and said, "Maybe so. Time will tell."

West has family approval of the match: "Having eyes, handlet with skin," O'Connell said from his sighted. She was that. Debra is such an open soul, "I'm long every member as showing him."

I received this email from someone (jan@yaho.com): "I read somewhere that Dilip Kumar's family was strict to forbid to sing smugghing. Is this true? Could that be the deeper reason why Mukta left him? Check out this link: <http://www.bollywood.com>"

I checked out the site. The report was in Turkish... "Uluslararası Kardinale Oda" (Papal Office, Apostolic Nuncio's Office) "being a European agency. He phoned my friend, so I did some research. The names translated to: Dr. Savaşgil's own pet, named as human (Islamic) across."

I understand that Ultimate has drafted the same coffee. He ought to speak up again now to drop his name. As a new instant TV show, just over's coffee. We've heard Ruffin's side of the story. It's Y2K man's turn. This column is open to his camp.
